It was by faith that Abraham obeyed when God called him to to leave home and go to another land that God would give him as his inheritance. He went without knowing where he was going. And even when he reached the land God promised him, he lived there by faith—for he was a foreigner, living in tents. And so did Isaac and Jacob, who inherited the same promise. Abraham was confidently looking forward to a city with eternal foundations, a city designed and built by God.. Heb. 11:8+

I am only one, but still I am one. I cannot do everything, but still I can do something; and because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do something that I can do. Helen Keller

Faith justifies the person, and works justify his faith.
Elisha Coles

When prayer is less sweet and easy; when love is less animated and tender; when the presence of God is less evident and less consoling; when even outward duties are fulfilled with less facility and enjoyment; then faithfulness is greater when maintained under these painful circumstances, and that is all that God requires. François Fenelon

Missions is not the ultimate goal of the church.
Worship is. Missions exists because worship doesn't. John Piper

The Bible is not the basis of missions; missions is the basis of the Bible Ralph Winter

If you don't spend time thinking about God, you won't have much to say about God. John Younts

In the middle of the 3rd century AD there was a terrible plague and many died. The pagans and doctors left the cities to avoid this disease. However, the Christians stayed behind and helped those who were ill and dying. Eusebius, a church historian, states that because of the Christians compassion in the midst of the plague, the Christians' "deeds were on everyone's lips, and they glorified the God of the Christians.
Such actions convinced them that they alone were pious and truly reverent to God."
