You may think that you can condemn such people, but you are just as bad, and you have no excuse! When you say they are wicked and should be punished you are condemning yourself, for you who judge others do the very same things. And we know that God in his Justice, will punish anyone who does such things. Since you judge others for doing these things, why do you you think you can avoid God's judgement when you do the same things? Don't you see how wonderfully kind, tolerant, and patient God is with you? Rom.2:1+

The more I study nature, the more I am amazed at the Creator. Louis Pasteur

Nature is but a name for an effect whose cause is God. William Cowper

He who complains of the weather, complains of the God who ordained the weather! William Law

Seeing the grandeur of the mountains or the power and expanse of the ocean, it's not hard to see how people throughout history have found themselves worshipping various aspects of nature. The psalmist was right to direct our attention beyond the mountains to the ultimate source, the Creator God. How fabulous that the Maker of the Mountains is also so personal in His love, so complete in His care! Anon.

Our Lord has written the promise of the resurrection, not in books alone but in every leaf in springtime. Martin Luther

Men go abroad to wonder at the heights of mountains, at the huge waves of the sea, at the long courses of the rivers, at the vast compass of the ocean, at the circular motions of the stars, and they pass by themselves without wondering. Augustine

Surely there is something in the unruffled calm of nature that overawes our little anxieties and doubts: the sight of the deep-blue sky, and the clustering stars above seem to impart a quiet to the mind. Jonathan Edwards

Sailors in the northern oceans have frequently observed icebergs traveling in one direction in spite of strong winds blowing in the opposite direction. The icebergs were moving against the winds, but how? The explanation is that the icebergs, with eight-ninths of their bulk under the water surface, were caught in the grip of strong currents that moved them in a certain direction, no matter which way the winds raged. In the Christian life, no matter how strongly the winds of passing opinion blow in opposition, the believer who has a depth of living in the currents of God's grace should move toward righteousness.
