Jesus was then led away by the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted by the devil. For forty days and forty nights he fasted, and at the end of them he was famished. The tempter approached him and said, 'If you are the Son of God, tell these stones to become bread.' Jesus answered, "Scripture says, ' man cannot live on bread alone; he lives on every word that God utters.' The devil then took him to the Holy City" and set him on the parapet of the temple. 'If you are the Son of God,' he said, 'throw yourself down, for Scripture says,' He will put his angels in charge of you, and they will support you in their arms, for fear you should strike your foot against a stone" Jesus answered him , " Scripture says again, 'You are not to put the Lord your God to the test.'" What does God have to say about the impact of all this debt on His people? He tells us in Proverbs 22:7b” “The borrower becomes the lender’s slave.” Debt makes you a slave to your lender. In the Old Testament world if you couldn’t pay your debt on time you became the slave of the lender until you worked off your obligations. In our day, if you borrow money you become the lender’s slave by giving much or most of your income back to the lender.
If you want God’s help to get out of debt, you must put God first in your giving. It flies in the face of conventional wisdom, but I have seen many families give their way out of debt. Rod Rogers
If I have but enough for myself and family, I am steward only for myself and them; if I have more, I am but a steward of that abundance for others. George Herbert
At the end of your life on earth you will be evaluated and rewarded according to how well you handled what God entrusted to you. Rick Warren
Since my money is God's money, every spending decision I make is a spiritual decision John Hagee
A Christian without patience is like a soldier without arms. Thomas Watson
But the real killing of joy comes with the grabbing of pleasure. As with credit card usage. the price tag is hidden at the start, but the physical and emotional debt incurred will take a long time to pay off. N. T. Wright

There is a story about a student at Cambridge University who entered the classroom on exam day and asked the proctor to bring him cakes and ale. The proctor refused, expressing astonishment at the young student’s audacity. At this point the student read from the four-hundred-year-old Laws of Cambridge, which were written in Latin and still somewhat in effect. The passage read by the student said, "Gentlemen sitting for examinations may request and require Cakes and Ale." The proctor was forced to comply. Pepsi and hamburgers were judged the modern equivalent, and the law was on his side. The student was later summoned to the office of Academic Affairs to face disciplinary action and was assessed a fine of five pounds. He was not fined for demanding cakes and ale, but for blatantly disregarding another obscure Cambridge law: he had failed to wear a sword to the examination.
